

Sponsored | RISE Credit

See how to get your credit card debt under control

Recommended by

4D BASKETBALL

Ranking the 10 best mid-major classes of the 2018 early period

Corey Evans • BasketballRecruiting.Rivals.com

A number of mid-major programs have put together classes that should only enhance their chances of postseason success. We combine our mathematical rankings here at Rivals.com with how each prospect fits and create our mid-major power rankings for the early signing period.

REPORT CARDS: Big Ten | Big East | ACC | Big 12 | SEC | Pac-12 | AAC

RANKINGS: Rivals150 | Team

1. RHODE ISLAND

Jermaine Harris
Kelly Kline/Under Armour

Article Continues Below

Other Trending Articles On BasketballRecruiting.Rivals.com

Signings: Jermaine Harris, Dana Tate, Brendan Adams, Tyrese Martin

The Rams are the only Atlantic 10 program to boast more than one Rivals150 pledge this fall thanks to the commitments of Harris and Adams. Harris should solidify Rhode Island's frontcourt while Adams, who is the younger brother of St. Bonaventure star Jaylen Adams, is oozing with talent and upside. Toss in hard-nosed power forward Tate and high flying wing Martin and URI boasts the top mid-major recruiting class this fall.

2. HARVARD

Spencer Freedman
Jon Lopez/Nike @NikeEYB

Signings: Spencer Freedman, Noah Kirkwood, Kale Catchings, Mason Forbes

Harvard is no longer just known for its academic pedigree as Tommy Amaker has created an astounding culture of excellence on the hardwood in Cambridge. The Crimson will welcome two more Rivals150 prospects to campus next fall in the mold of playmaking guard Freedman and do-it-all forward Kirkwood. Supremely active forward Forbes and a potentially lock-down wing defender Catchings will join the duo.